

International Women's Day Film Event

To acknowledge International Women's Day, Pretty Beach Public School P&C is screening 'The Garden at the End of the World', a documentary by award winning film maker Gary Caganoff.

After almost a decade of much hyped international aid and reconstruction effort, and the homecoming of millions of refugees, Afghanistan is still experiencing widespread hunger, homelessness and lawlessness. Gary Caganoff follows veteran aid worker and permaculturist Rosemary Morrow into the very heart of Afghan suffering to document stories of survival directly from the women and children who are hurting the most.

For more than thirty years Rosemary has been working with war-torn communities in SE Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe. She was invited to go to Afghanistan by Afghan/Australian Mahboba Rawi to help build the capacity of the organisation in Kabul and to simultaneously carry out a feasibility study for permaculture.

With so much suffering perpetuated for so long, all that Afghanistan clings to now is hope. Fed by hope, both Rosemary's work and that of Mahboba's Promise, is to assist the Afghan people in planting the seeds of peace in the garden at the end of the world.

PLEASE NOTE

It will be a very special night because Mahboba Rawi, Rosemary Morrow and Gary Caganoff will be attending and speaking on the night. All proceeds raised on the night will be going to Mahboba's Promise to support the widows and orphans of Afghanistan. Please also note that this film is not suitable for children.

-
- What? 'The Garden at the End of the World', produced & directed by Gary Caganoff
- Where? Wagstaffe Hall
- When? Saturday, 6th March
- Time? 7.30 for 8.00pm
- Tickets? $20 (including light refreshments) available from the Wagstaffe Store, Mooch Inside and The Bouddi Gallery in Killcare
- Bring: Money for raffle tickets and donations

